ROCKVILLE, MD, July 5, 2006 – Centrac DC is proud to announce the opening of its Houston office and the appointment of Tom Clark as manager of the new location.

Centrac DC opened the new office as a reflection of our continued growth and to accommodate the ever-increasing demand for our marketing research services. This will be Centrac's first office located beyond the East Coast. Tom Clark will manage the day-to-day workings of the new office and will play a pivotal role in client development and account management.

Before joining Centrac, Mr. Clark was a research manager at Research Connections, Inc. for more than 15 years where he specialized in working with U.S. pharmaceutical and medical companies. His previous experience includes working as an account executive at NFO Research and as an advertising supervisor and art director at the Polaroid Corporation. Mr. Clark graduated from the College of William and Mary with an MBA.

"While Centrac has always been national and even international in scope, this gives us a physical presence beyond the East Coast," said Jeff Adler, president of Centrac DC. "With more than 30 years of marketing research experience, Mr. Clark is a valuable addition to Centrac DC. To have him head up our new office is even more exciting."
